Dear [REDACTED]

I and my students want to thank you for arranging the discussion on Monday afternoon, the 30th of January. It was an extremely interesting, open meeting and was exactly right for my students. This kind of exchange makes the broad field of foreign affairs much more real to my students and, as a consequence, my teaching courses in foreign policy is greatly facilitated.

STATINTL

I enjoyed the opportunity to meet you, [REDACTED] and the three women research analysts. And the Agency sponsored transportation service was a delight. Perhaps, next year, there will be an opportunity to bring another group of students to Langley.

Sincerely,

Henry T. Nash

I have enclosed a list of the names and dates of birth of the Hollins students who will be visiting the Agency on Monday afternoon, January 30th. My date of birth is October 14, 1922. As I mentioned on the phone, I appreciate the time you have taken to arrange a visit that will enable my students to discuss informally some aspects of CIA responsibilities.

If it is possible I hope you will be able to arrange some form of transportation from downtown Washington to Langley. As I mentioned, we will be at USIA, 1776 Pennsylvania Avenue, during the morning and could come to any address in the downtown area to meet any vehicle of any size.

Once again, many thanks and I look forward to meeting you on the 30th.

Sincerely,

Henry T. Nash
Professor of Politics

Dear Professor Nash,

I am pleased to learn that you and a group of Hollins students will be in Washington in January as part of their studies of the US foreign policy process. This Agency will attempt to assist you in whatever way we can.

I have asked [REDACTED] our Associate Coordinator for Academic Relations, to be in touch with you directly to make arrangements for your group to visit CIA and to meet with appropriate officers.

Dear Admiral Turner:

On 22 July 1977 you wrote to Ms. Susanne Methven, President of the Student Government Association at Hollins College. In this letter you mentioned that you had learned through a friend that entering Hollins students were invited to read several books to be discussed with members of the faculty after they arrived at college. Two of these books were about the CIA and both were strongly critical of the Agency (Marchetti and Marks, THE CIA AND THE CULT OF INTELLIGENCE and Patrick J. McGarvey, CIA: THE MYTH AND THE MADNESS). You mentioned the titles of three books that might offer balance to our bibliography and suggested that a representative of the CIA might be made available to participate in our discussions and answer questions. Since I am the Professor who selected the books to be read and was responsible for the related discussion, your letter was brought to my attention. Although there has been a lapse of four months since you wrote to Ms. Methven, I wanted to respond to your letter with the following request.

During the period from January 10 to February 11 I am offering a short program of study concerned with the functions and operations of government agencies in the field of foreign affairs. Students will spend three weeks studying the activities of agencies such as the State Department, Defense Department, and CIA. Hollins has no regular classes during the month of January which means that the academic focus of my students will be exclusively devoted to this project. The dual objective of this study is 1) to identify strengths and weaknesses of these agencies as advisory bodies to the President and 2) to examine these agencies from the standpoint of career possibilities. Following three weeks of study and discussion we would like to come to Washington to meet officials working in the agencies we study. Now, for my request. Could you help us to arrange a meeting with one or two Agency employees with whom we could discuss some aspect of CIA activity (particularly in the area of research and analysis) and also the subject of career opportunities for women (all of my students will be women) with the Agency? What I had in mind was an informal meeting of approximately one hour. There will be 15 students in the group and we could come to any office you suggest at any time on January 31, February 1 or February 2.

I shall greatly appreciate any help you can provide. If there are any questions about my plans or objectives for this project, please call me collect at (703) 362-6355.

Sincerely,

Henry T. Nash

Ms. Susanne Methven
President
Student Government Association
Hollins College
Roanoke, Virginia 24020

Dear Ms. Methven:

A friend of mine whose daughter is entering Hollins College this September as a freshman sent me a copy of your June letter to new students. I was impressed especially by your ambitious and worthwhile orientation program. The fact that you ask incoming students to read and be prepared to discuss seven books before coming to college is a true indicator of the serious intellectual philosophy of Hollins College.

I was, of course, interested that the CIA is the subject of two of the books that you recommend. I would note, however, that both books you single out express strong opinions against the CIA. If you agree that the hallmark of a first-quality academic undertaking is to ensure that all sides of an issue are aired and thoroughly discussed, I think it would be helpful if your new students could read something that presented the other side of the case. As in almost all disputations, there is another side. Several books that might balance your bibliography include: Secrets, Spies and Scholars, by Ray S. Cline; The Night Watch, by David Atlee Phillips; or The CIA's Secret Operations, by Harry Rositzke.

Your proposed questions also tend to infer a predisposition to one side of the issue. I would suggest that some balance and a more positive and constructive discussion might be encouraged with questions like:

1. What should be the role of the CIA in the affairs of the United States Government?
2. Is there a place for secrecy in an open society?
How best can it be achieved without incurring abuses?
3. Do intelligence collection, analysis and dissemination contribute to a free society? What is the nature of that contribution?

Approved For Release 2001/07/27 : CIA-RDP86B00985R000400090014-5

E1.21

At the same time, I recognize that at this late date it is unlikely you could amend your list of books or your questions or that the new students would have time to read still another book or two. To correct this imbalance, if you think it would be helpful for a representative of the CIA to participate in your discussions or be available to answer questions I would be happy to ask one of our people to contact you. I leave that up to you.

In sum, I encourage your stimulating undertaking. An open and full debate on all aspects of American government is, in my mind, the best way to understand the process of government and to develop those criteria which we can use to judge the merits of any governmental action or agency.

STATINTL

Yours sincerely,

STANSFIELD TURNER
